

LOOK FOR ARSON IN WINERY FIRES

FEDERAL AND STATE OFFICIALS
BEGIN WIDE INVESTIGATIONS

TWENTY LIQUOR HOUSES UNDER BAN DESTROYED

Practically All Had Been Deprived of Permits to Sell—Santa Rosa Storehouse Burned With $30,000 Loss in Recent Fire

San Francisco.—A joint investigation has been instituted by the prohibition department, state arson board and insurance companies of fires of questionable origin in bonded wineries over the state. In as many months twenty wineries, most of them filled to their capacity with liquor, have been destroyed by fire. Insurance companies have paid on these fires aggregating $300,000 and the total destruction is estimated to be more than a million dollars.

Insurance adjusters allege that in nearly every instance the burned wineries had been under investigation by the prohibition department and most of them had been deprived of their federal permits, which led to suspicion that the blazes might have been of incendiary origin.

When the permit of a winery owner is revoked, he has no legal way of disposing of his wine, but expenses for storage, insurance and interest on investment continue. The authorities believe some winery fires are the result in fear that prohibition inspectors will discover a discrepancy between the amount of wine the records call for and the quantity actually on hand.

In California are hundreds of thousands of gallons of wines for which no legal market exists. Millions of gallons of wine are now in storage in the state with no prospect of legal sale.

Prohibition Director Rutter is endeavoring to restrict the production of wine and it is probable that when the grape-pressing season starts this autumn he will order a drastic cut in the production of wine.

The Nevada winery at Santa Rosa was recently burned with a loss estimated at $30,000. Fifteen thousand gallons of wine were lost. Clemente Ariasi, owner of the winery, was with his family on an automobile trip through southern California.

EARTHQUAKE SHAKES MONTANA TRAINS STALLED BY LANDSLIDES

Billings.—Nearly two-thirds of the state of Montana was shaken vigorously by two series of earthquake shocks. Panic seized thousands of people in Billings, Butte, Anaconda, Great Falls, Missoula, Livingston and Helena and they rushed clear of buildings, fearing for their lives. Although no loss of life was reported at first, word that the temblors had taken their toll in property damage soon began to trickle in.

Three passenger trains, two of the Milwaukee road and the other a Northern Pacific train, are caught between two avalanches near Lombard, Mont., which were caused by the earthquakes, and a special train was made up here to go to their rescue.

Defense Reports Given

Washington.—A detailed analysis of final reports of the first defense test, September 12, last, made public by the War department, showed that a total of 1,215,520 one-day volunteers were enrolled for that day with regular national guard and organized reserve units of the army. This was 231,693 men in excess of the number that actual mobilization plans for a major emergency would call to the colors during the first four months of the mobilization. The volunteers brought the army up to a strength of 1,549,332 men for the day.

Where Tax Collectors "Ain't"

Port Allen, La.—The "taxless town" has been found. Port Allen, across the Mississippi from Baton Rouge, has a population of "not less than 500" and will henceforth be the only town where municipal luxuries will be available without cost to taxpayers. This is possible through a recently awarded contract for a ferry franchise between the city and Baton Rouge.

State Employee Acquitted

Sacramento.—Bart C. Greer, an employee in the secretary of state's office, was acquitted by a jury in the federal court on a charge of extortion in connection with the prohibition law. Greer, with his cousin, Walter Greer, former prohibition director in this section, also faces a charge of falsifying government expense accounts.

SANTA BARBARA QUAKE DEATHS 12

DAMAGE CONSERVATIVELY ESTI-
MATED AT OVER $30,000,000

EARTH TREMORS WRECK MAIN BUSINESS DISTRICT

Buildings in Los Angeles Swayed by Same Temblors—Shock Felt All
Along the Coast—Plans for Rebuilding Already Under Way.

Santa Barbara.—The tablets of death indicate twelve lives as a portion of the toll taken by earth tremors that started here Monday morning at 6:44 o'clock and continued at various intervals throughout the day and into the night.

In the hospitals were thirty injured. Conservative estimates of material damage, which, however, cannot be definitely confirmed, fixed the loss at $15,000,000. More liberal surveys ran the damage as high as $30,000,000.

State street, the main artery of the town and twisted business district, presented a desolate appearance.

In the crumpled ruins of the exclusive Hotel Arlington, the fall of a tank containing 60,000 gallons of water had swept to her death Mrs. H. Charles Perkins, aged millionaire widow of Burlington, Iowa; and Bertram B. Hancock, son of G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles realty dealer. The latter escaped with three broken ribs and scalp wounds, after falling and sliding three stories to the ground from the room beside that in which his son met his death.

The finest building in town, the San Marcos, a big 4-story, first class structure, built as an "L," on a corner, had its whole corner center pushed into the debris. Dr. James Angle, dentist, was killed in this crash.

Diehl's grocery, said to have been one of the finest stores of its type in the west, which represented an outlay of $250,000, was a mass of ruins.

At the other end of the fourteen blocks of State street, which approximately marked the extent of the serious business district damage, the new California hotel, a hostelry of one hundred rooms, completed within the week, was a total wreck. The roof had collapsed in several places and throughout its entire height one corner had been ripped bare, exposing the beds as they stood prepared for guests, careening at a dizzy angle and threatening to skid out into the brick-littered street.

Another comparatively new hotel, the Carrillo, two large wings of filled concrete construction, was badly shaken in its two lowest floors, but above that the walls seemed to be as good as new. The interior furnishings, however, all showed the mark of the temblor.

Here and there throughout the downtown section the pavement bulged and cracked, while in some locations it had been slashed and chopped into fragments a foot square by the grinding force of the successive tremors.

In the elder and less pretentious residential districts the earthquake had played queer pranks with the wooden houses built a quarter and half a century ago.

One sagged crazily in front, its gable hanging two feet nearer the road than its foundation posts. Another had buckled in the middle and leered at the passing world through bay windows which had been sheltered from the summer sun by an old fashioned veranda.

Immediately next door was a little home of two stories, which looked much weaker in build than its neighbor, but here not a bit of damage had been done except to the chimney cap.

Back on the hills the old Mission of Santa Barbara, founded by the Spanish fathers who came with the conquistadores to the new world, still stood in part, defying its second earthquake. It had gone through a similar shake in the early eighties and was rebuilt only to suffer again.

The mission's towers, with its sweet toned bells, crashed, while a kneeling congregation bowed within. Then the congregation walked out over the adobe wreckage led by the priest who had celebrated the mass.

Nowhere, or only in very rare instances, did the men, women and children of Santa Barbara spend Monday night within doors. Many whose homes were wrecked were forced to bed down in the open. The remainder slept on their lawns from choice.

"I have been through fifty earthquakes, but never one like this before," said Manager Richmond of the Arlington hotel. "It just took the hotel that we considered strong as a fortress and shook it back and forth as if it were a rag."

REV. MARSH SENT TO ATHENS

My dear Mr. Smith:
At your request, I am glad to write you the following statement.

Quite unexpectedly, Mrs. Marsh and I have been appointed to the School of Religion at Athens, Greece, going as missionaries of the Congregational Board of Foreign Missions. The school is for the training of ministers for Greece, Bulgaria, Turkey, Syria and Russia, students coming from the Greek orthodox communities, as well as from the Mission schools.

We are under the necessity of leaving Campbell early next week, in order to complete arrangements for leaving California and starting for New York August 1.

We shall carry a very great affection for Campbell and its people and shall be glad to accept your invitation to write you letters occasionally about our work in Athens.

CANNING SEASON ON WITH A HUM

Work at the three local canneries has begun this week and things are fast getting settled into routine order and the registered help is fast being mustered in. Many familiar faces of those who come successive seasons are seen on the streets and all available rooms and cottages are about filled up, and tent colonies are appearing in many places.

All of the plants anticipate long and busy seasons.

The J. C. Ainsley Co. has added a new section to the warehouse department so that the plant now covers the entire block between Campbell avenue and Foote streets and the Southern Pacific tracks and Harrison avenue. A new brick building has been built around the engine house which is in the center of the block. A new well has been drilled and a pressure tower is being erected on an adjoining lot.

The California Canneries Co. has also added a large wing to the warehouse to facilitate the handling of its pack prior to casing for shipment. A new sugar room has been built on the track side of the plant and a conveyor installed for carrying the sugar to the upper floor. Several new exhaust boxes and cookers have been installed.

The Geo. E. Hyde Co. has made several alterations and improvements in their plant in preparation for the season's work which promises to be one of the biggest in years.

WONDERLUST

When so many of our good citizens are faring forth into the "great out-of-doors" the following verses seem specially apropos. OUT ON THE OPEN ROAD From the snow-crowned slopes of the Siskiyon, And from cloud-wreathed Shasta's height, Runs a peasant road into God's abode, To the Vale of Heart's Delight.

From the marts of trade, from the strain and stress, Let us ride the King's Highway, By the ruined walls and the silent halls, With their storied cloisters gray.

Through the fern-clad paths of the redwood groves, Where the singing rivers glide, To the rock-bound steep where the breakers sweep, At the will of wind and tide.

To Yosemite and its granite crags Where a thousand voices call, Where the waters race in a mad, swift pace As they burst their icy pall.

California weaves with a mystic loom, And it casts a magic spell, And the Gypsy Trail over hill and dale Will a joyous story tell.

MISS SMITH HONORED WITH SCHOLARSHIP

Friends of one of Campbell's most talented musicians, Miss Patrice Smith, were pleased to hear this week that she had won a scholarship in the Master School of Musical Arts of San Francisco. Altho only in its second year this school is attracting the attention of musicians throughout the country. Some of the best teachers of the United States are in attendance at the school for the summer course.

A fund has been established for very talented pupils and Miss Smith is most fortunate to have won this opportunity. She will remain in San Francisco for the term studying under S. Stojowski. This is also great compliment to Emily Pannell Gard who has been Miss Smith's instructor from the beginning and shows the efficiency of her methods and training.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

The Fourth of July, appropriately called Independence Day, marks a political cleavage from the mother country. But time has brought us a realization of more than the commemoration of an inevitable strategy among nations. With the independence from political bonds, from which the famous Declaration pronounced in no uncertain terms, came an independence and a freedom of thought and action which this nation has cherished for a century and a half. Just what we as American people have done with that independence is recorded in the annals of a proud and self-sustaining people.

But we are not completely out of danger. Not from aggression or invasion, but danger of construing our independence as too complete a security, just as many have translated liberty into license. No nation can be so independent as to ignore the well-being of other people on the face of the earth. The world is too small for that.

Along with our independence there comes manifestly to every thinking American a charitable feeling of dependence upon all constructive forces for good and for peace in whatever part of the world may be developed. Much as we may have set ourselves upon the pedestal of enlightenment, we are dependent upon the entire world for cooperation in our efforts for a higher civilization.

To put it tersely, we are independent as a nation only so long as we seek to cultivate a wholesome and constructive inter-dependence among all nations.

Let the firecrackers crack and the bands play, while every loyal citizen rejoices that America is independent in the work of her destiny, and yet dependent upon all the world for emulation of her ideals.

AS TO FINGERPRINTS

A good many people act squeamish over the suggestion that states and cities adopt a civil finger-print registry system. This might mean protection for the innocent as well as detection of the guilty. Experts in criminology have demonstrated that the finger-print is a positive means of identification, and courts accept finger-print testimony as weighty evidence. But why the sensitiveness to the finger-print? It's all in the way one looks at it. Every time you drive your car you carry with it a number plastered on both front and rear. When you register to vote you are numbered. You are glad to drop a penny in a slot to have your weight recorded. Your photograph, which is a whole face and head print, gracefully adorns the top of the piano. People have been so accustomed to associating finger prints with crime, that it will take some time to reconcile the idea of submitting the wife or darling baby to finger-printing with the idea of safety and civil duty.

THE HOME NEWSPAPER

It has been said that no institution not founded on a fundamental human need can live. The reverse of this is also true. This is why the home newspaper, as an institution, has survived many things: the onslaughts of individual opposition, the increase of paper and printing costs, the peril of unpaid subscriptions, the uncertainty of advertising patronage, the problems of its own professional competition, and the hazards of its own mistakes. Through all these the home newspaper still lives.

When subjected to the test of whether the home newspaper could be done without, there always follows the inevitable reaction of whether the people of the community would WANT to do without it. The more than 17,000 daily, weekly, semi-weekly and tri-weekly newspapers in the United States and Canada stand as proof of the important service the newspaper renders in its local field of circulation.

The newspaper is not an invention, nor is it a fad or a fancy. It is a growth—a development made possible by the cooperative and receptive spirit of the people themselves because of the need for the transmission of news and as a circulation medium for advertising the products of the community and of the world. But the home newspaper is even more than this. It is the echo of the community's voice, a spokesman of the community's mind, a reflection of the community's vision, a champion of the community's rights, and a direct avenue for the community's progress.

Putting on Finishing Touches

View showing the modern method of cementing the inside of the tunnel on the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's big Pit No. 2 Power development in Shasta County.

On this project it was necessary to bore a tunnel 20,981 feet which, in the rough was 23 feet in diameter. As the boring progressed a crew followed, putting up a wooden structure to keep the walls from caving in. This was further reinforced by concreting the entire interior leaving a cement tube 19 feet in diameter, through which the water will flow in full capacity with a minimum of friction to the power house.

A steel form 60 feet long is built around a carrier which runs on tracks. This form is raised and lowered by the aid of jacks. When raised to the desired height it is bolted down.

A concrete mixing machine equipped with compressed air guns shoots the concrete in behind the forms. As soon as it sets the forms is lowered, leaving a smooth clean surface. It is then moved up to the next position.

This four-mile tunnel was constructed and put into service in less than two years. There were no fatalities. It took only five months to place the concrete by this method. Several world's records for speed and economy were broken.

Camp Fire Permits

The United States forest service has announced that the building of any kind of fires on national forest lands in California, except by those who have obtained a written permit, would again be prohibited this year.

A statement issued from the office of District Forester Paul G. Redington in San Francisco on the matter of camp fire permits reads as follows:

"This regulation covers not only ordinary outdoor camp and picnic fires, but fire in any kind of a stove using gasoline, coal oil, wood or other forms of fuel. Permits may be secured free of charge from any federal forest officer, state fire warden and other designated agencies, such as automobile clubs and sporting goods stores.

"The 1925 permit differs from that of previous seasons, in that this year the permit is not valid until the applicant has signed the permit, which signature binds the permittee to observe certain rules in respect to care with camp fires, burning tobacco, matches, etc. Windshield stickers will not be used this year to designate holders of federal camp fire permits.

"General camp fire permits covering all national forests in California, or the entire summer vacation season, will not be issued. Permits will be restricted to individual forests and trips, except that where visitors are planning a continuous trip through a number of different government forests, a permit covering the forests concerned and for the period of the trip may be obtained. Camp fire permits for the three national forests in southern California can only be secured from officers of these forests or their designated agents.

"The attention of all visitors and users of national forest lands is especially directed to the fact that the throwing away of burning tobacco, matches or other inflammable material which may cause a fire is prohibited by federal regulation. Violators of this regulation are subject to fine or imprisonment or both. A similar state law, passed by the last legislature, becomes effective July 24 throughout California."

Harbor Commissioners Sued

San Francisco.—W. S. Ferguson of Cleveland, Ohio, patentee of a process for the making of concrete piers, and four other members of the board of directors of the company holding the patents, filed an action in the United States district court here for the recovery of $407,000 from the state board of harbor commissioners, charging infringement on the process. All of the plaintiffs are residents of Cleveland.

The complaint sets forth that San Francisco has approximately $6,000,000 in concrete piers in which the patented piling and forms are used. The returns are asked for in the form of royalties from the earnings of these piers.

Deeds have been recorded at Alameda ratifying the purchase of 5,770 acres of timberland in the western part of the Modoc national forest, for which negotiations have been pending for several months.

The supposition that Faculty glade, one of the beauty spots of the University of California campus at Berkeley, was once an Indian burial ground, was confirmed by anthropologists when workmen excavating for the new men's faculty club uncovered an Indian skeleton—the third found on the site. In addition to the three skeletons found on the clubhouse site, several more were found during the building of the stadium, a short distance away.

The lowest bids for the construction of three bridges on the state road leading into the California Redwood park, Santa Cruz county, were submitted by Mrs. A. J. Wilson and Mrs. W. S. Wilson of St. Helena, the first women to bid on highway work in the history of the state highway commission. They represented their husbands, Napa county contractors, and submitted a joint offer of $13,004.

More than 2,000 Los Angeles jobless men were guests of "Brother" Tom Liddecott at a banquet commemorating the eighth anniversary of his mid-night mission and the sixty-first anniversary of his birth. Scores of society matrons and girls assisted at the affair.

Governor Richardson will be in Long Beach during July and August, according to present plans. Fletcher Bowron, his executive secretary, will accompany him south, while Harry Lutgens, private secretary, attends to office details at Sacramento.

The victim of a strange accident, Mrs. William McCloud of Modesto, was rescued on the verge of death from strangulation. She was hunting for the valve to turn off the water supply in her home when she tripped and fell, her neck lodging in the stanchion.

Park rangers have been unable to find any trace of Frank J. Koeman, San Francisco camera man, missing for two weeks from Camp Curry.

In a Los Angeles rooming house fire Neal Benson, Fullerton oil worker, was burned to death and several others narrowly escaped with their lives. A report that Benson had $1,800 on his person led to an investigation by police, who think he may have been robbed and the house then fired.

Frank F. Atkinson, Sacramento attorney, is a new member of the governing board of the state veterans' home at Yountville, to succeed Harry E. Speas of San Francisco, term expired. E. L. Hawk, a G. A. R. veteran of Sacramento, and E. B. Himmann of Redwood City were re-appointed.

STORKS will live ONLY in REPUBLICS

—Or so people used to think in the 16th century.

This is the 20th century. But we are still superstitious; for example, when we pay fancy prices for eastern lubricants in spite of the fact that the best crudes so far discovered for the manufacture of a motor oil are obtained from wells on the Pacific Coast.

Experience explodes the anti-western oil superstition

Zerolene actually lubricates better—and because it does it lubricates more cars in the Pacific Coast states than any other oil made—low and high priced cars alike. The most advanced refining process is this Company's patented high-vacuum process, during the use of which Zerolene is submitted to 15 positive checks for quality. Zerolene's special filtration through 40 tons of Florida Fuller's Earth gives you an oil that's absolutely pure and safe.

A longer working life for your motor

Zerolene will increase the gasoline mileage of your car, reduce carbon accumulation and lengthen its working life.

Why pay tribute to a superstition? Insist on Zerolene—ask for it by name.

Get the Facts!

A series of independent and impartial reports showing the experience of large users with Zerolene has been collected in our booklet, "Why Pay Tribute to a Superstition?" Ask any Standard Oil Company representative or Zerolene dealer for a copy.

Insist on ZEROLENE even if it does COST LESS
